STUNIT CAR RACER

Heh heh, you thought we were going to write something like 'jobs' didn't you? Well no, we've got far too much pride and self respect for that. No, what we really want to see on PSone, for all your sakes, is Geoff Crammond's legendary Stunt Car Racer!

A truly unique bit of racing history, mixing fast-paced track action with insane jumps and loops and vertigo-inducing spills. Give it to us! We're gagging for it!

(And seeing as the franchise is getting a long-overdue relaunch on these posh modern consoles, how hard would it be to get the original ported to PSone? We'll tell you: not at all. A month's work – if that – for a guaranteed winner. Fact!)

Memo to software companies: please, for the love of God, give something back to PSone. Come on, it was the machine that single-handedly established many of your companies, so how about returning the favour and releasing something good.

Anything. Oh, and find us some jobs while you're at it!

The most successful games mag in the history of games mags is drawing to an end – how was it for you?

Breath

Well, this is it. Eight years on, more laughs than an entire series of Mad About Alice could possibly generate behind us and here we are - The. Last. OPM. Ever.

But whereas some magazines scurry away in the night like some guilt-ridden half of a one night stand (having first wiped their proverbial dignity. How exactly? With the bestest, most kick-ass farewell feature ever produced!

Inside you'll find everything from nostalgic look-backs to staff member dissections, the greatest hits of Justice to a build-your-own how the mag was made to your very own, just-for-fun reviews ouija board – hell, if we're not around to grade your games in person, our spirit will forever be at your service!

What else could befit such a significant passing? How about the biggest, most jampacked disc imaginable? Sure, there are a few demos on there you will have seen before, are 20 - yes, that's TWENTY of the best Yaroze games of all time. Full games you are good enough to be stand-aloners

So all that's left for me to say is farewell, God bless and a bloody big thanks for being there and joining us for the ride. The journey's over and, alas, it is now time to get off!

> Janet Strzebrakowski via email

We've no idea, to be honest. Although, if we were to hazard a guess, we'd reckon your collection's worth anything from one pound upwards. Try hunting down the Antiques Roadshow fellas and ask them; or alternatively dangle them on eBay and see who bites OPM

SWAP SHOP SHUT

I would like to know when you're actually going to start this 'Swap Shop' (OPM105)? I'm intrigued and would love to read it in the next issue of OPM. So what is taking so long? You say you need more pages but you never act on any ideas quickly!

Another gripe I have with you is the demos on the discs get worse every time. Do you remember back in OPM95 that you practically did the same demosfor about three issues? Come on now, use your common sense and start to use some real old classics, like Tomb Raider for instance. And whatever happened to all those lovely Yaroze games? Why not reuse some of the really original ones? Maybe even do a page on the top 20 Yarooze games and with every issue go down to 15, ten, five and then finish with the top three?

Well, now you have enough ideas to get rid of the PS2 C*$@! Honestly, you guys can be pretty damn ridiculous sometimes. What would you do without

STAR LETTE

SEGA POWER

OPM Am I the only person that thinks Sega is stupid for not rereleasing its back catalogue of Saturn games on PSone? I'd Letter love to play the likes of Nights, Burning Rangers, Daytona, Sonic Jam, Last Bronx and Panzer Dragoon again. They would sell well, it wouldn't cost much to port them and I'm certain they'd all score over 8/10 in your fine publication. Also, I'd like to say that everyone who has been cussing you for not reviewing many games recently needs to open their eyes. It's not OPM's fault if there are only a few new games released each month.

I've got a few questions if you don't mind: (1) Any chance of putting full commercial games on the front cover? Perhaps not the stuff that everyone has got already, like Tekken and Ridge Racer, but obscure stuff like Jumping Flash. All Sony would need to do is reprint the CDs. (2) Do you think Play It will bring Robocod 3 and it's sports spin-off, Aquatic Games, to PSone? (3) Is Ford Truck Mania any good? My local Blockbusters has it going cheap. Cheers.

Matthew Denman

via email.

Nope, you're not the only person who thinks Sega is one joypad short of a multiplayer party. As you said, it'd cost them pennies to convert the Saturn gems, they'd do well (they wouldn't all get 8/10, though) and they'd shift like a space shuttle made out of ass candy. And as for your questions: (1) Can't, Sony won't allow a full game to go on the disc except Yarooze ones. (2) They might, but make sure you use your Oujia board to get the OPM review before buying them. (3) Gotham Games released it without telling us, see the review on page 54. OPM us women to sort you out! Get this sorted or I will be forced to write to you again! Be warned!

The Angry Bumble Bee

As you might have gathered, in between sessions of flower sniffing and angry dog stinging, this is the last ever issue of OPM and therefore, you'll see hell turned into a Disney resort before OPM does a Swap Shop. The reason we didn't do one before is because it would have taken far too long for us to arrange it and if readers were sending games to each other, loads of you would have probably been ripped off by scoundrels. You want rid of the PS2 pages, you say, eh? From next month, there will be no PS2 pages. Or PSone pages either, come to think of it. OPM

IVAN THE TERRIBLE

I am a 14-year-old boy who hangs out for the next issue of your fabulous magazine [Oops! – Ed] because yours is the only goddamn one that focuses on PSone in my small, quiet local newsagent.

Anyway, I am writing to inform you of a mistake on page 21 in *OPM*104, in the Sci-Fi special feature that only a few people would notice. The picture on the bottom-left is in fact from Krazy Ivan, not, as stated, Mechwarrior. It said in your A-Z that Krazy Ivan was very rare and takes some digging and luck to find – but guess what? I've got it, that's how I know that the picture is from Krazy Ivan. By the way, who ever was playing as Commander Popovitch was getting their butt creamed from Thunderfoot! Oh, and your mag is the best thing that I have ever bought,

Chris Darcey

Australia

Yeah, okay, we'll give you that, but only because all our games have now been boxed up and sent to Ghana in exchange for God's rich blessings aplenty, so we couldn't actually check if you're right. Not that we would have really checked anyway, but y'know... OPM

TEN-FOLD

I have been collecting OPM since issue 97. I am nine years old (Ten on 23rd March) and got my PSone at Xmas '02. Before you announced that issue 108 would be your final issue I was worried. I'm getting a PS2 for my birthday, but didn't want to turn to the 'dark side' so I was gonna continue getting OPM. Now you have finished, who's going to rate our new games? Who's going to comfort us in our moment of need? Who? Why did you have to leave us OPM?

Seriously though, Thanks to everyone who contributed in creating such a brill mag!

CHEATS IN CHOKEY

I recently wrote to Interactive Telcom concerning PSone consoles in the hope that they produced books or booklets regarding tips and cheats for PSone games. They informed me they don't, but instead gave me your company's details explaining you produce a range of magazines which would contain the sort of content that I was looking for.

Due to our the prison's security issues of consoles, we can only have PSones and are always looking for quality companies so we can access anything for the console. We have several companies provide access to purchase games but don't have any company to purchase tips & cheats. We aren't allowed to use cheats sites either by computer or telephone. If you could give me details of any publication titles and prices I would be most grateful. Thanks in advance.

Gordon Bennit, OPM gets everywhere! Ghana, Prison and just the other day we found one in a large tin of baked beans that was enveloped up in a Millwall brick.

As for getting game help it's a bit of a surprise that you're not able to get onto www.gamefaqs.com. It's a free site and the backbone of the tips industry. So if there's anyone on the outside who you can get to download and print off cheats and walkthroughs for you, that's the only way you can now get help on your games. Good luck and happy playing. OPAS

DEAD TO RIGHTS

From the Master System, to the Dreamcast, to the N64 – I've always supported consoles in their final hours.

The PSone is no different and I'm glad that I stayed with it as I would have missed out on a lot of decent titles (Metal Slug X, Ballerburg and Formula One Arcade, to name a few). Even though I own all three next-gen systems, I've been reading OPM regularly for well over a year. The reason? I can tell just by reading it that you guys have fun writing it. There aren't many magazines around these days which give me that elusive vibe. I'm going to be sad to see you go, and I hope that you've all managed to find employment doing things that you enjoy. Even Cheats Daddy.

via email

PS: Where will I be able find reviews of the upcoming PSone games (the Atari and Play It line-ups)? Will you be able to have a few pages in the Official PS2 Magazine, or will I have to start buying GamesMaster?

You're damn right, Matt, we did have a right old laugh putting OPM together each month, so much so that the team have now barricaded themselves in the office and are already hammering out the 'Rebirth' issue. Shame it'll never get released really, because according to Ryan and Jim, it's, "The best issue, ever." But as Arnie probably once said, "I'll be... blowed, das ich ein really fine set of hootas, young lady, can I have a sqeeze? Danka!"

Oh, and your best bet is GM. OPM

WRITE OFF...

The OPM letterbox is being nailed shut as we speak. So save the trees and kindly stoy writing in (as the chances are your letters will only be read by unhinged cleaning ladies). OPM would like to thank everyone who has taken time to send us letters, pictures and bizarre sculptures over the years and tielped add voice and personality to the magazine. #### WHERE YOU MAKE DESIGNERS STAND AND DELIVER!

This, our friends, is the last three ISBAGs we'll ever mock up. Yes, our Art Trolls have finally turned into stone and broken into little pieces, just after Deanways grabbed their paintbrushes and sold them in a car-boot sale. If you still harbour ambitions to be a game designer, then you'll have to bombard the game development companies with your well-thought-out thoughts. Remember though, they'll want more than a front cover and a few measely words, they'll want physics engine designs, artificial Intelligence Algorithm structures and the design document will have to be, ohh, THIS BIG!

Good luck, God bless, and don't let the hungry tramp (otherwise know as Curley) bite in the night.

WITHER IST PLACE: THE DARKNESS, ANGER AND PAIN by Joshua Binder, Leight-On-Sea

• THE CONCEPT

A fighting platformer where you choose between three characters; Darkness, who wants to take revenge for his father's death, can use Shadow Shield and Darkness Punch, Pain, who wants to kill the man who killed him can use Blood Thrust and Rise Of The Dead. And Anger, who is out to save his family, can use Ape Stomp and Fury Slam.

THE PITCH

There are five worlds in all, each with ten levels. There are two bosses in each world and they are called Blood, Water, Fire, Earth, Shadow, Ape, Air, Air 2.0, Electric, Thunder and Death.

THE VERDICT

When this came in and we opened the front cover, Jim's eyes lit up like two smalls puddles of oil used as ashtrays. The three characters sound like the kinda misfits you wouldn't want to share a bed with, and the baddies all sound like they could use a right good 'Ape Stomping'. You won the last ISBAG Joshua - if that isn't worth telling your grandkids about, then nothing is.

like a real game box? Well it's too bloody late now. We guess you should have stopped chewing your pencil and got them in soone

THE OTHERS

Here we usually try to give you advice on how to make your entry sparkle like Ann Diamond covered in champagne. Instead, we're going to tell you how to become a real designer. You MUST do well in school, companies like Sony won't listen if you've only got a GCSE in five-a-side. Also, if ALC: NO you have a PC, try and learn BASIC. It's fairly easy and all good designers know a little programming. Now, onwards!

TIME TO KILL

By Jordan Bell, Bristol

'Your wife gets kidnapped and you have to try and save her from Diamoto, the Boss. A time limit game, people will love it because it is a shooting sim. Like Syphon Filter " A cross between Syphon

Filter and The Getaway mixed with clocks then innit? Love it to bits, but there is a John Grisham book (and a film) called this, so you might have to find another name. Or maybe just start all over again from scratch. Ha!

NINJA BUNNIES

By The Man With No Name (or address) "You begin as a bunny in jail then you escape and start killing all humans. Weapons include Chainsaw, Axe, Bazookas and Machine Gun. People will love it because it's fun to kill things with strange weapons – it could relieve stress." Not bad, but if you want to relieve stress with bunny-related entertainment; try a copy of PlayBoy instead. After all, that's what Deanways has been using all these years!

BATTLE OF THE STONE AGES

By Craig Gaskell, St Helens This is a basic Stone Age game with battles and adventure. It is quite like Crash Bash except it's in bird's-eye view and you win turds as trophys and the enemies are goofy cavemen. To OPM writers – you have a challenge to fit every word in." No we don't mate, the "You have to beat level one to reach level two..." just crap sent us all to sleep.

THE CONCEPT

It's about Busted when they go time-travelling to the year 3000. They accidentally go back in time and end up in the cavemen days. They can also use guitars as weapons.

THE PITCH

People will love it because in the bonus levels you will find a microphone with which to hear them sing!

THE VERDICT

The reason we liked this is because if Busted did shoot off back to 1,000,000 BC we'd be rid of the talentless, rancid. music molesting jokers. Listening to them sing wouldn't be a bonus, it'd be like being set on fire.

THE CONCEPT

You play as Destructo, a chap who's made a deal with King Hideaway that you will hide his secret info for payment. Not only did he not pay, he's experimenting on your mate!

• THE PITCH

It's a mixture of adventure, platforming and strategy where you solve puzzles to get closer to the King. Transform into an Elf, Knight or Jester to gain supreme powers!

THE VERDICT

"I'M A DICK, PRIVATE DICK, AND I DON'T TAKE ANY DICKING AROUND, SEE? YOU WANT THE FACTS OF THE CASE? JUST KEEP IT KYLIE - THAT'S PI LANGUAGE FOR SHORT AND SWEET."

Blimey! We'd need ten pages to get all of William's design in! Puzzle cubes, Digging Claws, Pogo Scooters, a Courage Meter. You could earn a crust doing this lad. To Sony with you!

TAKE A BREATH

HOLD IT... AND RELAX. PLEASE!

There is a thing that's p***ing me off! Why can't you get PS2 games on PSone? I don't want a PS2 because they break down after a year for boomer's sake! That's not all that's making me mad! Why don't they make wrestling games for PSone anymore? I'm fed up with the same old SmackDown!, Warzone, WCW Mayhem and Backpassage assault! One last question, where in the world is Ghost In The Shell? I've been looking for it for over a year now and I need to find it so I can do something else with my time.

> Buddy Miller Peterborough

Why can't you get PS2 games on the PSone? The same reason you can't get Formula One engines for a Fiesta or DVDs for your Etch-A-Sketch. PS2's don't break down after a year either, unless, of course, you whack it with a hammer a year after you buy it. Celebrity Deathmatch was a recent wrestling game, but it was shite so leave it be.

You can pick between three computer opponents and if you take too long on your shot, strange things start to happen, like when the balls stick their tongues out at you and demon eyes appear in the dark bits around the table. Top, slightly bonkers, stuff! .

COINING IT

When you pick your apponent, the computer automatically flicks a highly random coin as to who will break. The computer player virtually always knocks one or more down on the break, so if they get the favourable coin-side - don't stand for it. Simply skip back through the menus and have the coin flicked again. And again if need be. A scummy tactic yes, but highly effective.

DEFENDING

The staggeringly bizarre frontend music gets you prepared for an Uruk Hai porn film, what you get is Defender. Which is no bad thing! It's almost the spit of the arcade classic with all the Landers, Mutants, Briters, Swarmers, Pods and Bombers out to kick your ass. Use the radar at the top to see where the baddies are and keep one finger poised over the smart bomb.

Seeing as your ship moves faster than a birlanibellied Curley on a mad, morning-after dash to the toilet, you will probably steer your craft head-on into an alien foe. This curious little gem is twoplayer only, so you'll need a mate or a hyper-intelligent cat to play it properly. Set across three stages, the idea is to batter your penguin opponent into submission by lobbing a succession of snowballs at them. To do this, waddle up to a pile of snow and press (a) to gobble it up, then aim at your foe and press (a) to gob it at 'em.

Just make sure you don't topple in yourself though as your movement is slowed down and it's hard to get out.

Someone wrote into the letter pages slagging this off recently, and they deserve a good kicking into the net. # IT'S ALL OVER

All good things must come to an end. And so must Official PlayStation Magazine

This is it, then. The last ever OPM. We've been staving off the inevitable for months now, battling the bean-counters in our quest to keep on bringing you the only – and the best – PSone mag available, but finally our time has come. It's time for us to shuffle off this mortal coil, as it were.

But not quite yet. Most magazines simply fade away. One minute they're there, the next there's a big gap on the newsagent's shelf and no explanation. Not in our case, there isn't. We've exceeded even the most optimistic estimates as to how long we'd last (there was a time when no-one believed we'd even reach Issue 100, you know), we know we're on the final stretch and, by crikey, we're going out with a bang.

Well, what did you expect? That we'd go quietly? Sod that. We've got far too much to shout about and too many daft ideas to cram in. And seeing as this is the last OPM that you're ever going to read (unless you go to the trouble of obtaining one of those strange foreign versions) we figured that we ought to make sure that it's something a bit special. Something for you to keep in a special box and treasure forever. Indeed, perhaps you might want to buy a second copy to just keep sealed in its bag and then sell for an enormous nostalgia-flavoured profit in ten years or so. Just a thought.

So then. This is no time for sad speeches and getting dressed up in black (unless you're Jim) – it's time to celebrate the best dam PSone mag the world ever saw, and have a bit of a laugh while we're at it. Let's go!

THE SEVEN STAGES OF OPM LOSS

Can't deal with the fact that there aren't going to be any more OPMs? Don't worry! Here's our handy psychological guide to the various stages you'll go though – see if you can collect the entire set!

1: Shock

"What? This is the last one?" (swoons)

2: Denial

"Nah, this has got to be a wind-up. Those crazy guys!"

3: Anger

"You bastards! And you never published my letter! I'm coming to kill you!"

4: Guilt

"Perhaps this is my fault. I should have bought more copies. And got my mates to buy copies. And written in to say how brilliant the mag was.

Especially since Jim came on board."

5: Bargaining

"Dear OPM, here are my life savings. Please could you use them to carry on making your excellent magazine?"

6: Depression

"What's the bloody point? They probably hate me anyway."

7: Acceptance

"Ooh, I never realised PS2s were such good value!"

Official UK) Play Station Magazine The Twilight Years: Issue100-107 Retrospective

Twilight years? As if. Ask anyone (especially Ryan or Jim) and they'll tell you the last few issues were the best ones ever!

Let's be blunt - the PSone isn't doing quite as strongly as it used to. So, suppose you were put in charge of producing the only magazine still devoted to it - what would you do?

Mope around about things not being as great as they used to be? Or think, "Sod that! The PSone still has the biggest back-catalogue of fun in the world! So let's go all-out to cram OPM with as much fun as possible!"? We plumped for the latter. Come for another stroll with us down short-term-memory lane...

OPM101 -The Summer

This is more like it. Crash on the cover looking dead cool on a surfboard (and prompting at least one letter saying, "Dear OPM I bought your magazine because it had Crash on the cover of the magazine and I thought there'd be a in the magazine, you ripped me off love Giles"), a big fun-packed Summer feature (including the excellent PlayStation Festival, the first of our bonkers illustrations), a load of reviews, the first in an increasingly disturbing series of appearances by angry father, Trevor Bosanquet, in The 'Station.

OPM 100 -The Century

Erk. Don't remind us. In our defence, like Phyllis in The Railway Children, we meant well. OPM100 marked the first proper coming-together of leam OPM as you know us today, and obviously there were teething troubles. First of all there was the messy business of disposing of the bodies of Nellis, Keith, etc. And then there was the fabulous 100th issue feature! We had some brilliant ideas, but, y'know. Early days and all. That horrible horse race thing still makes us shudder. We swore to do better.

One day magazine historians will look at this issue of OPM and declare that it was the one where we finally hit our stride. It had everything! Mr T battering Marilyn Manson on the cover! An absolutely bonkers celebrity feature! The legendary Beyblade review (plus Beyblade Justice)! At least one filthy joke that no-one spotted! Another appearance in The 'Station by angry father, Trevor Bosanguet! A letter from Ghana! And a rather nice piece on hidden Easter Eggs in games. You literally had never had it so good. This issue was so popular that we only have one copy left in the office!

Sleb spot: We got all starstruck for a month and recycled a bunch of old Popbitch references while we were at it. Corn!

OPM103 - The Halloween

Halloween! So obviously we put a cotballer on the cover. Well, we did have an absolutely enormous FIFA cotball 2004 review, and he is quite a cary-looking footballer. The Art Trolls wouldn't listen to suggestions that we replace the botball with a big pumpkin. Shame. So we made up for it with a spooky, gory and daft Halloween feature, and then here was Justice... Jim came up with the idea about a not into our issue planning meeting, but we never rought he'd actually get some mates down, make a wicker Man, take it up to the top of a nearby hill, douse t with lighter fluid, get his mates to put on sheets and hen actually burn the thing with a copy of Rascal Racers attached to it. But he did. Bloody mentalist!

PlayStation

OPM104 -The Sci-Fi

With the list of themes to base the magazine around getting shorter, this month we got to sci-fi, which at least gave us the chance to put a scary Giger Alien on the cover. Hurrah! And we also got to dredge our memories for fun sci-fi things, think about our favourite robots and weapons, and all pile round Jim's house to watch sci-fi films. For some reason The Boy decided to dress up as a plushie sheep. It was also the month of a mere one review – Celebrity Deathmatch – which presented a bit of a challenge for the Justice squad, especially as it wasn't that bad. And angry father, Trevor Bosanquet, met with an unfortunate accident.

OPM105 - The Christmas Issue!

Yay! Christmas! And consequently we put a giant robot fish on the cover. Obviously. Well, we were all excited about James Pond: Robocod, a platformer from the dawn of time making its PSone debut, so why not? And then there was our special Christmas feature, notable for its insane board game, a reworked Christmas Carol, and that do-it-yourself nativity scene. Jim was disgusted that no-one actually made it and sent in photos, and he was equally disappointed that no-one wrote in to complain. He'd been ill that month – as documented in a somewhat sickening Justice.

Fish-face: Here's the James Pond picture we really wanted to use. Disturbing, isn't it?

OPM107 – The Fast & Furious Issue!

It took a good few goes for Ryan to explain the thinking behind this one. "No, look, it's nothing to do with Vin Diesel! It's fast, and it's furious! See? Like, racing games! And beat 'em ups! Fast and furious!" Suitably enlightened, the Senior Art Troll came up with a Kill Bill-style cover, and the rest of us came up with another fun-packed issue of fun, including Ryan's soon-to-be-legendary blow racing game, the boundary-pushing Great OPM Pub Car Park Fight (we're expecting complaints any day now), the Dalek of Justice and an awful lot of subtle and not-so-subtle hints about the impending OPM apocalypse.

OPM106 – The Fantasy Issuel

Aieeeee! The horror! There's a story behind that cover, but every time we ask the Senior Art Troll about it he starts twitching, crawls under his desk and has to be sedated again. It was the fantasy issue, and naturally we were delighted to come up with another mad feature based around all our favourite fantasy games. Yes. And there was also the beard-growing contest, a whole lump of the mag dedicated to Final Fantasy, an unexpectedly brilliant new game in the form of Buttsubushi, Cheats Bishop and the quickly-becominginfamous 'Dear Cheats Daddy' back page. No complaints so far, but we live in hope...

Flame on: We really love fantasy games, us. Obvious, really.

OPM108 – The Last One Ever!

You're holding it! Be careful with it though – we hear that pristine copies are already going for up to £100 on eBay! You'd better rush down the shops and get a spare, just in case!

Having thought long and hard and following a series of bizarre and somewhat dangerous experiments, 'feam OPM have come up with this supremely comprehensive list of things to

How do we do it, each and every month? Take an exclusive look behind the scenes at the making of OPM.

DAY ONE

The first day of the issue is traditionally our planning meeting. It's an arduous process that involves shutting down our computers, leaving the office and going across the road to our meeting venue, the pub. To the casual observer it might look like we're sitting around, quaffing booze and talking nonsense. And for the most part that's exactly what we're doing. But we're also batting ideas about like crazy beer-flavoured tennis balls, and anything good gets written down by Jim. The important thing is pace - too much booze and the ideas are just too silly and we have to do the whole thing again a day or two later. Not enough booze and you'd end up with a really boring magazine. It's all in the balance, you see.

really is a clot-faced wet purveyors of possibly the greatest sandwich-type snack known to man - the breakfast baguette. Bacon, sausages, two fried eggs, mushrooms and your choice of ketchup or brown sauce. You can feel your arteries hardening as you eat it. OPM simply would not happen. without at least one round of these cholesteroley wonders every week. Once they're consumed we're all so stuffed that the only option is to have a long nap, which generally takes us through to the end of the day.

DAY EIGHT

After a few days of routine, an actual game turns up for review! Ryan bagsies it for himself, has a quick go, decides it's rubbish and puts it in the post to Curley.

DAY FOURTEEN

Halfway through the issue and things are going smoothly. All Curley's stuff is due in today, and once it arrives we'll have a clear run all the way to deadline!

To celebrate we adjourn the pub for a halfwaythrough-the-issue meeting.

One been too -

and Art Troll

DAY FIFTEEN

A late and slightly hungover start is made worse when a text arrives from Curley saying he's been kidnapped by Welsh separatists. Even worse, they've got his laptop as well, containing all the stuff that was due in yesterday, and they want a serious ransom for the safe return of Curley and his laptop. Ryan asks how much they'd take for just the laptop.

DAY SIXTEEN

Negotiations continue with the Welsh separatists. Byteback, Disc Inferno and the reviews remain sad, empty pages. Jim asks Ryan to ask the Welsh separatists if they can at least have a look through Curley's reviews and tell us which gets the lowest mark, so that he can do Justice.

DAY TWENTY-ONE

Still no progress on the Curley/laptop front. In desperation Ryan and Jim take a train to London to burgle Curley's flat and see if he left any backup disks lying around. Just as they're forcing the back window, a call comes in from the Welsh separatists. Ryan takes the call, but there's a bit of an echo on the line. Even weirder. Jim can hear the echo as well and he's not even on the phone. They make their way through Curley's flat, the 'echo' getting louder, until they get to Curley's bedroom and find him in his pants, on the phone and making ransom demands in a Welsh accent. Caught in the act, he admits that he made the whole thing up to get a bit more time to finish his stuff and scam some extra cash out of us. He promises it'll never happen again and that he'll have everything done by tomorrow.

DAY TWO

Ryan disappears but will turn up at random moments for the rest of the issue. Jim gets on the phone and calls round all the major software publishers to find out what exciting new PSone games they have for review this issue. After about an hour of this he gives up and sits quietly weeping at his desk for a bit, before getting out the notes from yesterday's meeting. He then puts them away again. At some point Curley phones to arrange his deadlines for all his bits of the magazine. Jim agrees to everything he suggests.

It's easier that way. The Art Trolls start putting together designs for the cover and the CD.

DAY THREE

Jim gets out the notes from the meeting again and starts trying to make sense of them. With a bit of luck he can extract all the decent ideas and turn them into a feature plan within a day or two, after which he'll sit down and write the thing. The Art Trolls continue with the cover and CD designs, and Jim occasionally butts in with an impossible suggestion every now and then, just to keep them on their toes.

DAY TWENTY-TWO

io sign of Curley's stuff. Curley mones up to tell us his flat's been ested by tramps who let emselves in the open back window at that he's now having to sleep in a ustbin, but that he'll absolutely, solitively, definitely have s stuff done by tomorrow.

Ivan and Jim pull an all aghter to write Curley's

Stuff.

DAY TWENTY-THREE

Curley's stuff turns up.

DAY TWENTY-FIVE

With everything written and in the hands of the Art Trolls there's not a great deal for Ryan and Jim to do, so they fall back on their favourite hobby of goading the Art Trolls until they fight.

DAY TWENTY-SIX

It's time to do the coverlines. Ryan and Jim bat rubbish jokes back and forth until they come up with enough killer lines to make anyone with half a brain desperate to shell out for the magazine. Job done, they return to goading the Art Trolls.

Curley takes screenshots under pain of death.
Shortly afterwards he did a runner and we had to take the rest.

Once again The Boy confuses his web browser with a word processor. Another entire day wasted!

Result1 Ryan finds just the auction he was looking for1 Now if only he'd write his editorial column we could all go home!

DAY TWENTY-SEVEN

After goading the Art Trolls a little bit too much, with the result that both of them are in intensive care, Ryan and Jim are left to deal with the nightmare that is sending the magazine to the printers. After two hours' puzzled flicking through a dusty copy of 'Dataflow for Morons' they call in

The Boy, and promise him an extra shiny fifty pee

if he can sort it out, and optimistically leave him to it.

DAY TWENTY-EIGHT

The Art Trolls make a miraculous recovery and turn up just in time to prevent The Boy getting this month's issue printed on A5 cardboard. Social Services turn up to investigate reports of child slavery, but are > put off the scent by a false passport that gives The Boy's age as 21. Jim gets all overcome by thoughtfulness and takes a trip to London to remove the tramps from Curley's flat by firebombing it. Ryan wins an eBay auction for a Buzz Lightyear teething ring - a bargain at £324.75! In all, it's yet another typical month in the life and times of OPM. Except for the bit where Jim has to sit and type a few extra lines on the end of this column because it didn't quite reach the end of the page.

WHERE WE GET OUR IDEAS

Simple answer: the pub. Beer brings ideas, But it's a careful balancing act. Here's a rough guide to the secret beer consumed to idea quality ratio that fuels OPM.

"How about the top ten games that are related to this particular feature? With maybe some screenshots?"

.5 UNITS

"I know! It Should Be A whatever-the-feature-is Game! With mad pictures and silly jokes!"

1 UNIT

"Right! What about some cut-out thing? Or a board game? And something to annoy Daily Mail readers!"

"Listen! We get some pop star to pose naked with a PSone and wrestle Curley! Up a tree! With games and that! Whose round is it?"

It is time. Time to deliver the definitive verdict on the absolute ten best PSone games ever. Yes.

Yeah, we know. We did it in issue 400. But that was then and this is now, and we can't leave you without saluting the ten best PSone games ever, can we? No, we can't. So we've been busy playing every PSone game ever, rating them all to the most rigorous scientific standards and then arguing for the best part of a week over the results. So you can be sure, of all the 'best PSone games ever' lists, this is the best one ever.

IN BRIEF: Skateboarding without looking stupid. Or the injuries. Or the hassle of getting up and leaving the house.

Resident Evil 2

ZOMBIES, GUNS, MORE ZOMBIES,

IN BRIEF: Like being in George A Romero film. What's the matter? Don't you like having your face eaten off?

Gran Turismo 2

CARS. CARS. CARS. CARS. CARS.

IN BRIEF: It's a bit like pornography, only with cars instead of human beings. Normally we'd disapprove.

Tomb Raider

TOMBS, CRUELTY TO ANIMALS. BUTTOCKS.

IN BRIEF: Keeping the British end up, the estimable Ms Croft. What's she got against wild animals, though?

Parappa the Rapper

RAPPING. CARTOON LUNACY.

IN BRIEF: Proof, if proof be needed, that the Japanese are one hundred percent certifiably bonkers. Bless 'em.

ISS Pro Evo 2

FOOTBALL, LOST LUNCH HOURS. NUTMEG.

IN BRIEF: Game of two halves. Joypads for goalposts. It's the team what scores the most goals, innit? Marvellous.

Vietal Gear Solid

SNEAKING, SMOKING, NECK-SNAPPING, HIDING.

IN BRIEF: It kept Curley quiet for almost a week when he dug it out for another go. Thank you, Hideo Kojima!

baseball bat-wi

Since July 2001 the Justice Squad has been unstinting in upholding its pledge to wreak ugly and brutal revenge on the foul skidmarks on gaming's pants. From unpromising, baseball bat-wielding violence in *OPM*73 through to today's insane punishment, Justice has been the inevitable fate for all those horrid non-games that have besmirched and befouled our beloved PSone. And just as we've celebrated the best PSone games ever, it would be remiss of us not to salute the sterling work of the Justice Squad and how better than by reliving some of those finest moments of smackage?

OPM73: Baseball Bat

Not exactly an auspicious start to the whole Justice thing. Batman Of The Future gets a hammering from a baseball bat. Still, it ended up in a goodly pile of bits, and that's what matters.

OPM82: Ninja

A bit like that scene in The Last Samurai, except with a copy of Pajama Sam and without Chop phooey: Some game's gonna get its head kicked in tonight.

Tom Cruise. And with only one ninja. And... okay, it's nothing like that bit out of The Last Samurai, really.

OPM94: Football Hooligan

Quite where we managed to get some proper football hooligans in Bath is a bit of a mystery. We have a football team and all, but really Bath's more of a rugby town. Still the violence looks good and authentic.

ou're shit-aaah!: Trouble off the terraces for Shrek.

OPM104: Face-Huggers

Hugs: Our only ever miscarriage of Justice.

the surprising thing about this Justice was that the case was thrown out of court. Not that that stopped them...

Cor, what a stroke of genius! Using toy Face-Huggers to unleash the Justice on Celebrity Deathmatch! Of course,

OPM74: Frying Pan Sometimes the simplest ideas are the best. Such as:

frying a copy of Monster Racer over a camping stove with a tasty egg to go with it. Unfortunately, eating the dish didn't turn out to be quite so cunning.

You'd never get that in a Hardy's special.

OPM100: Toddler

Ryan's nipper, Amelie, grabs a copy of Tweenies: Game Time and gets her sticky fingers all over it. And breaks it. And leaves it lying all over the lawn covered in a heady mix of milk, scratches and toddler sick. Nasty.

OPM85: Rock God

OPM's own Mike Jenkins takes out his frustrations on X-Bladez Inline Skater by smashing a guitar all over it then stomping out. In real life Mike likes kittens, flowers and being nice to old people.

OPM79: Acid Bath

An early bath for Who Wants To Be A Millionaire? 2nd Edition, and it's a bath of foul-looking green nasty stuff mat leaves it in a distinctly messed-up state. That's what we call an acid casualty!

PlayStation

OPM97:

Cor, what a cop-out! Using toy figures to unleash the Justice on All Star Watersports? We've seen some rubbish ideas before but that really takes the proverbial biscuit. Tsk. Some people, eh?

Smot funny Whose idea was it to craft soldiers from bogeys, eh?

OPM103: Wicker Man

This one was touch-and-go. Clearly an insane idea. Build a Wicker Man and then sacrifice a copy of Rascal Racers? Ludicrous. But Jim got some friends over, built the Wicker Man in record time and talked his mates into carrying it all up nearby Little Solsbury Hill where, to the amusement of assorted passers-by, they dressed up in white sheets and burned it. The actual burning took a little over three minutes from ignition to small pile of smouldering ashes. It's a good job the photos came out okay!

OPMGAMES

YOU WILL NEED:

- · A pair of tweezers.
- · A steady hand.
- An independent adjudicator with a good eye.
- And maybe a buzzer.

INSTRUCTIONS

Cut out all the pieces, and the holes in Curley's stinking carcass. You might want to stick everything on a stout bit of card first. Then drop the pieces into the right holes. The aim of the game is to take it in turns to remove Curley's organs with the tweezers and put them in your organ pile. But you'll need a very steady hand - if you touch the edges then it's the next player's go! If you're feeling adventurous you might want to try wiring it all up like a proper operationbased game. You know the one. But otherwise, make do with a sharp-eyed adjudicator. And whoever has the most of Curley's rancid bits at the end of the game is the winner!

ONE LOST

TEAM OPM

AGE: 29

ABOUT: I have a daughter, Amelie, aged three and a son called Marlo, one. I drive a Ford Focus Estate that leaks and listen to Elvis (he talks to me, see!).

ENDED UP ON OPM... Rich Keith asked me if I wanted to edit the Official PlayStation 2 mag. Naturally, I jumped at the chance. But then I found out that what he actually said was, "Do you fancy editing the mag, y'know the Official PlayStation to... (whispered) the time it dies?" Hell, I didn't even know the Official PSone mag was still going!

WHAT NEXT? Apparently I'm lined up to edit Marie Claire... What? Oh, Your Sinclair. Hmmph...

SPECIAL SKILL: Catching the entire contents of my baby son's stomach in the palm of my hand. Often.

FAVOURITE GAME: Pro Evolution Soccer 3. Oh, PSone? Er Animal Snap.

BEST OPM MOMENT: Taking a crap Curley idea and transforming it into the OPM Ouija Board. It was made even better when I let Jim and not Curley write it to ensure the finished article was funny.

DARK SECRET: I am actually Deanways' father!

JIM

NAME: Jim McCauley AGE: 33

ABOUT: I'm just this bloke who likes games and writes words. I might resemble some scary black-clad demonic overlord, but I'm not. And I'll eat the eyes of anyone who claims different. Only joking! Anyway, my favourite colour is purple, I live with Philippa and a small angry chinchilla called Tezcatlipoca, and I had toast for breakfast.

ENDED UP ON OPM... Entirely by accident. Curley asked me to write The 'Station one month, got me to come in part-time the next month, and a few months later I nicked his job. Harsh? Maybe. But that's life.

WHAT NEXT? A bit of a lie-down.

SPECIAL SKILL: The twisty-thumb thing that makes everyone go, "EEEEWWWW!"

FAVOURITE GAME: It might just have to be Buttsubushi. Yes. Buttsubushi.

BEST OPM MOMENT: Wicker Man Justice. An insane idea that actually came off splendidly.

DARK SECRET: Um. Er, well I don't actually own a PSone.

CURLEY

NAME: Lord Daniel Featheringstonehaugh-Curleigh AGE: 30

ABOUT: I say, is it safe to spill the beans? Splendid wheeze! Well, I like to pretend I'm some northern oik but actually I hail from the family estate in Kent, and I'm 243rd in line to the throne. I live in a mansion with my beautiful wife, Jocasta, and I enjoy shooting peasants. Sorry, pheasants.

ENDED UP ON OPM... You know how it is. Did a couple of years in the paras, a few years in the City, decided to try my hand at something different, Daddy made a few calls.

WHAT NEXT? I'm not entirely sure. I might become an explorer for a bit. Or perhaps a farmer.

SPECIAL SKILL: I can open a bottle of champagne single-handed without spilling a drop.

FAVOURITE GAME: I rather liked that Tomb Raider malarkey. Although that Croft girl's a bit common.

BEST OPM MOMENT: When I dressed up as a superhero. What japes! Jocasta I wet herself when she saw the pictures! Apparently that's a thing in her family – weak bladders. And dwarfism.

Who are these OPM people? Where did they come from? It's time to fess up

NAME: Sam Deanways AGE: Looks about 14

ABOUT: I'm a young gun and I'm going for it! I love modern alternative indie pop music like REM and Alanis Morlssette! Hike games too, and girls, and watching telly, and crisps, and puppies, and other nice things! But I don't like Brussels sprouts, custard or watching the news. Boring!

ENDED UP ON OPM ... Ryan caught me scrumping apples in his back garden, and threatened to tell my mum if I didn't come and work for him on OPM!

WHAT NEXT? Curley keeps promising me he'll talk to his mates in London and get me a job on one of those cool music papers like Sounds, Melody Maker or Record Mirror! Failing that, GCSEs I suppose!

SPECIAL SKILL: Apparently I make the best tea! I'm so good at it that Ryan insists I make it all the time!

FAVOURITE GAME: I suppose you think I'm going to say Detective Barbie! Well, you're right!

BEST OPM MOMENT: All the times I've been on the cover! Sorry? No, it's not Harry Potter! It's me!

DARK SECRET: I once disgraced myself in the office because Ryan wouldn't let me go to the toilet!

NAMES: Mark Mitchell and Colin Nightingale AGE: 87 (combined)

ABOUT: Ugh! Art Trolls! Art Trolls like pictures! Pictures good! Words bad! Words make Art Trolls angry! Art Trolls smash!

ENDED UP ON OPM... Bad man trick Art Trolls with shiny things!

WHAT NEXT: Escape! Freedom for Art Trolls! Roast billy goats! Yum!

FAVOURITE GAME: Scary move picture demon box! Art Trolls scared demon box.

BEST OPM MOMENT: Bad man lose whip. Art Trolls more happy no whip.

DARK SECRET: Actually we're both perfectly normal people and we're getting more than a bit tired of this whole Art Troll thing. Colin cries himself to sleep about it every night. I hope you're happy. You bastards.

CHEATS DADDY

NAME: Cheats Daddy AGE: 39

ABOUT: Wot you askin' for? There's an old sayin' rahnd my manah - don't go askin' no-one nuffink unless you're after a slap. You after a slap? Eh? Come on then, ya slimy little ponce wiv all ya clevah questions! Have some o' that!

MAKE YOUR OWN OPM

Obviously the actual OPM funeral hasn't taken place at the time of writing. That would be daft. But as soon as we finish off the issue we're all off to bury ourselves. And we've worked out what it'll be like so that you can have your very own OPM send-off to cut out and keep. It's what we would have wanted.

Floral tribute: From Cheats Daddy.

Hugo: Glad to see us gone, then?

Pyre: For a more pagan ritual.

Mourners: Showing just the right lack of decorum, we reckon.

More mourners: Just in case you really want to beef up the grief.

1 FUNERAL!

Couldn't make it to our funeral? Don't worry! Cut out and keep your very own reproduction! (Buy another copy so you don't ruin this one!)

Pall-bearers Only the best for OPM!

Tasteful: Nice grave-stone, innit?

Them two out of Fear Effect 2: Tsch. Give it a rest, girls!

THE OPM EVERLASTINGR

Fret not! Even though OPIM's gone you can still get top-notch game buying advice with our occulttastic, just-for-fun, supernatural review kit!

We know what you're thinking. You're thinking, "Hell's trousers! Without OPM every month I'm going to be completely lost when it comes to working out which of the doubtless myriad new PSone games in the shops are worth buying! What will I do?"

No need to panic! We've put on our thinking caps and come up with a foolproof way in which you can get all the PSone buying advice you'll ever need, with just a little help from the dark arts. Yes! It's the Everlasting OPM Reviews Ouija Board!

It's just like a normal Ouija board, only different! You'll need our special cut-out Mystic Oracle and some mates to help you summon the spirit of OPM. You put the Oracle – stuck to some card – on the Ouija board, everyone puts a finger on it, and then you summon the OPM spirit using whichever your favourite incantation may be. Then ask for guidance on the game you want to know about – the Oracle should pick out the key review phrases and even a mark out of ten. Brilliant or what!

Careful though – if the OPM Everlasting Reviews Ouija Board starts telling you to kill your friends, you've probably summoned Satan by mistake. Easily done. Just tell him to bugger off and start again!

The controls are the worst we've ever encountered Just when we thought games couldn't get any worse, along comes this.

Kids will love it, but everyone else should steer well clear.

Crap in singleplayer mode, but the multiplayer's brilliant!

You'll lose hours of your life playing it. If you're into this sort of game then this is the sort of game you'll be into!

It's as if God Himself decided to have a go at making games!

GAMEPLAY

- Utterly involving and delightful
- Like having spears of frozen urine hammered into your nostrils
- Fun at first, but you've seen it all before
- Even a dead chimp would find it simplistic
- Gaming has never been so good

LIFESPAN

- Barely measurable
- Remember to stop and sleep every now and then
- It'll keep you going for a week if you're lucky
- An afternoon's fun and that's your lot
- Not a lot, but the multiplayer will keep you going for ages!

at too bad, at room for provement

Fun in quite a few places, but seriously lacking in others.

It may be the end for OPM but at least we've outlived this little lot!

Now we lay us down to sleep... Death comes to us all in the end, his gaunt figure draped in black and – oh, hold on a minute. No, that's not Death. That's Jim. Trick of the light. Anyway, the point is that even though OPM is about to feel Death's icy grip upon its spine, it's been a good innings. We've been around far, far longer than the average console mag, we've had a lot of laughs and, hey, we've outlived all these chancers! So don't mourn our passing too much – chuckle at these losers instead!

The faithful rise above prosaic pursuits to ponder wondrous mysteries and have a bit of a natter...

The other side

The Ancients ordered the scrolls be furled and laid in the Great Library. The end of all things had come to pass...

So this is it. The last Final Fantazine ever. Is that a tear in your eye? Can we detect a wobble in your chin, a wibble on your upper lip? All great things come to an your upper lip? All great things come to an end and so must our homage to Final Fantasy, but dry those tears and raise a smile because the show goes on in the awesome universe of FF. Like Aeris in FF7, we may be getting laid to rest but the fight continues and there's plenty to look forward to.

For those who don't yet own a PS2, you'll want to make it a priority in 2004 if you hope to play the next games in the series, highlighted below. Sit back as look forward to all the adventures immediately ahead for those, like us. who are FF freaks!

FINAL FANTASY X

Many of you will have already played this brilliant game. To some it's the best ever FF and it's difficult to argue against that opinion. FFX is a huge graphical hike over PSone FF titles, has a great story, fantastic characters and the best side game ever – Blitzball. The card games have been great but they're nothing compared to a full-on mini game that's great fun to play and is the avenue to collect some unique items that you won't find anywhere else in the game.

The GFs, or Aeons as they're called in FFX, are stunning and for the first time you can summon and continually fight with them. They can die in combat, of course, but their use on the battlefield is taken to a new level. On the babe front, you've got three in the form of Yuna, Rikku and Lulu (our favourite of the three). Tidus is the male lead and, although very irritating at first, he grows in stature and proves himself to be he stuff of legend as the game draws to a close. If you're a tearful soul and easily moved to spill the odd roller down your cheek, get your hankies ready for the climatic end of this game.

FINAL FANTASY X-2

FFX-2 is a unique title in that it's the first true FF sequel, ever.
Yuna and Rikku make it over from FFX and are two of your main characters. The third main character is Paine, another babe who's more in the moody style of some the series' male leads.

New kids on the block: Ashe and Vaan (right) are the stars of Final Fantasy XII.

Instead of the usual huge, unfurling storyline typical of FF, this game is mission-based and in that sense doesn't feel like a full-blown FF title. Aeons and GFs are no more, which will make total sense if you've played FFX – we won't spoil it here for those who haven't! Limit attacks now take the form of Dress-up spheres. These give your character a clothes change – the transition happens like a summon – and the character takes on the persona of the new set of strides. It's very cool and we reckon it's probably the best new element in the game.

FFX-2 is a top title, even though it does feel quite different from the rest of the series, and will be available in the UK in February.

"One of the big plus points for us is that GF's are definitely back in. Woohoo!"

Sephiroth: Female fans are going to be very excited by this DVD!

FFVII: ADVENT CHILDREN

This is the sequel to FFVII, possibly the most requested game of all time, but it isn't a game. Nope, it's a straight to DVD FMV film from the makers of Final Fantasy: The Spirit Within. It features Cloud and Sephiroth two years down the line from the end of FFVII and it looks bloody awesome. Okay, so Sephiroth has become more androgynous and looks more girlie than ever, but hey, he can get away with it and all the swooning girls out there will still love him as much as ever. After all, he's easily the most drooled over male character by our Final Fantazine females. See, all the girls love a bad guy really!

Anyway, Cloud is spot on and having seen the trailer with Cloud and Sephiroth going head to head in some kind of industrial plant, we can't wait for this baby to hit the streets. Japan will have the DVD by the summer but there's no UK release date yet, although we're certain it will make it over here.

FINAL FANTASY XII

Final Fantasy XII? What happened to FFXI? In short, that's an online game set in FF's universe and which is something quite different from the console titles we know and love due to the very nature of the beast. Which now brings us onto FFXII, the first 'proper' FF title since FFX. It's looking

Final Fantasy VII: It's the best FF, we reckon, and possibly even the best PSone game ever incredible and even though it hasn't really had a graphical update over FFX because Square Enix wants to concentrate on other factors in the game, it seems to be a tad better. Which, of course, may be rose-coloured spectacle syndrome on our part for anything new.

Vaan and Ashe are the male and female leads respectively, but they appear to have reversed roles from the usual FF approach, with vaan being the happy-go-lucky type and Ashe being the moody bugger. Or should that be bugger-ess? Hmm.

There are other races besides human in the game, one of which we know to be a playable character - female Fran is an Amazonian type of the Viera race and has huge bunny ears. Stop laughing! We kid you not! The only other playable character so far revealed is the pirate Balflear, the gun guy in this game, who is somewhat along the lines of ladies man Irvine in FFVIII. That said, we've seen images of Fran with a gun so it may be that guns are more of a feature this time around. The last FF game to have a heavy gun presence was FFVIII.

And then there are the airships. While they've always featured in the series, Square flagged up that they'll be much more of a central theme than previously. Which is a good indicator that we'll be exploring our asses off once again after the mission-based FFX-2!

The game's visual style looks sweet as hell and this time it draws it's inspiration from the Mediterranean of yesteryear. One of the big plus points for us is that GFs are definitely back in. Woohoo! We know that Fran can summon GFs because Square has specifically pointed this out, and this suggests that there will only be certain characters who have the ability to summon in the game, as in FFIX

So it looks like business as usual for FFXII, but we reckon you can expect Square to come up with some subtle tweaks here and there that'll alter the series just that little bit. For example, you'll be able to view the whole game. not only in its usual third-person view, but also in first-person, which is an FF first.

We can't wait and you can't wait, but wait we will. Don't expect to see FFXII hitting the shelves in the UK before 2005.

OPM'S FAVES

XS Junior League Soccer

League Socicer
Welcome, friends, to the penultimate OPM review. In years to come, people will look back and wonder what the second-to-last game ever reviewed in OPM was, and they'll look on their special hologram space cubes and discover that it was this. XS Junior League Soccer. Kind of like football, but with the added shrill cries of children.

Ford Truck Mania

Justice

With the end days upon us, a pervading air of panic and the knowledge that neither of this month's games really deserve the attentions of the Justice Squad, it's been tempting to cancei this month's Justice. But surely, surely there's something out there that can receive one final judgement? Something that's outlived its usefulness? The Justice Squad tools up and goes after... OPM itself!

PS2 REVIEWS: You'd better get used to it. PSone reviews are like, totally outdated, man. So try some PS2 reviews. Go on. You might like them! Four pages of 'em, starting on Page 92.

PN 103. 10 Nothing radically new, but more polished than this

PRO EVOLUTION SOCCER OPA195, 10 10 PSone fcotie just doesn't get any better than this. **→

School eh? Happiest days of your life an' all that? Bogwashes, Chinese burns, cheeky fag behind the bike sheds, awkward fumblings in sheds, awkward fumblings in a darkened corner of the disco – ahh, magic.

But let us not forget school football. A mad, anarchic, anything-goes imitation of our beautiful game, usually played by teams of about 25 on skin-scraping concrete. With a tennis ball. You can bet your bun money it's where the likes of Rooney learned their trade and, indeed, where we all aspired to be something greater than fish gutters and rail attendants. XS Junior League Soccer sends it all flooding back...

You pick a team of five from a motley crew of 16 nose-picking, lank-haired sulky kids. It's a fair mix of boys, girls, fat, thin and visually impaired and each has stats based on ability, strength and handling. All that's missing is the relentless piss-taking of those that get picked last or not at all, and then these rejects skulking off home to raid mummy's secret stash of spirits to get over the trauma. Ah happy days.

What then follows is a clumsy, but nevertheless charming, game of footie where key aspects such as marking, tracking back and tactical awareness are discarded like a particularly sticky bogey in favour of mindless running and ball chasing in extreme numbers. Controls are limited to simple pass, shoot and run capabilities, although back-heels, flick-ons and scorching volleys are all possible with a little bit of practice.

Taking some inspiration from the FIFA series, the set pieces are handled via an icon system. Press the button that corresponds with the symbol above your team mate's head and the ball will be kicked towards them. There's none of the thinking-ahead of Pro Evolution Soccer required as, again like FIFA, dribbling effortlessly around your opponents before dinking the ball, top corner-wards, is commonplace, which kind of dulls the proceedings somewhat.

When things don't go according to plan and you accidentally run the ball out, blast wide of in open goal or, perish the thought, divert the sall into your own net, the shrill-like cackling of our tactless peers is as deafening as it is lisheartening. So the pressure's on to perform. Jut sadly, the opportunity to do so is as rare as Leeds United home win.

With only two modes of play – Arcade and ournament – to occupy you until the end-of-unch bell sounds, there's not a great deal of ubstance. The game also continues a worrying rend of new budget titles not supporting emory cards. So even if you do decide to the the tournament, you've got to play it out one sitting – safe in the knowledge that ere's naff-all to unlock by winning it because, ell, you wouldn't be able to save it even if ere was

In the current climate of exhumed and rereleased corpses of games gone by (and not forgetting Barbie hell!), to see an original game with at least a shred of charm is refreshing. However, as good a laugh as XS Junior League Soccer is, we always got the impression while playing it that the developer just hadn't put enough time and effort into the project to lift it beyond shabby mediocrity.

The graphics are bland and blocky, it has all the fluidity of playing in a quagmire and the anorexic menu of options means you'll devour all it has to offer within a few measly hours. Sure, we liked the kiddy spin, the five themed pitches and the sound effects but, as the song goes, where is the love?

Another racing game, but it's actually mother-trucking good!

Videogames are escapism, letting us flee from the mirthfree, blandness of reality and bathe in worlds with laser guns, time-travelling sheep and ice skates that can fly into space. So why anyone would base a game around a car brand that conjures up images of sweaty builders burping in clapped out Sierras or stressed-out single mum's in hamster & wheel powered Fiestas is frankly beyond us.

If you've played any of the other Mania games (Moto X, ATV) you'll have a fair old idea what it's about. You get to pick from a range of Truckular beasts then burn around tracks in hope of hammering the other trucks like a panel beater with rabies.

The main game is the Career mode. First up, you select your favourite Truck from a forecourt of four, then you race the other three over a series of 12, five-lap courses. Leave the field for dust and hit the finish line first and you'll bag 100 points. Move slower than Lisa Riley getting out of a bath and come last and your scoreage will be less impressive than Diane Modahl getting dumped on by worm excrement in a Bushtucker Trial. In order to reach the next course and stay in the career, you need to keep your rear-bumper clear of the fourth spot in league table or out you go. There are three class settings in all. Once you've come top dog in yet another four monsters. Surprisingly, this Career mode has considerably more depth than the other Mania games and can take a week or two to complete – not bad lasting power for a game that costs less than a pizza!

THE LAST REVIEW

The tracks are a mix and match of various terrains. There are dusty canyons, mudsplattered rain forests, bummed-cold snow levels and even a closed down coal mine (aptly named, Misery Mines). There are over 14 courses in all, all of which can be raced in reverse – so we're talking more courses than a Medieval banquet here! Other modes include the obvious single runs, time trials and practice. What is good is the amount of options you have to play these games differently.

There are three different kinds of play.

Normal will see all four cars racing in the same direction. Head On is a one-on-one race where you're both racing around the same track in different directions but best of all is Suicide, which is like Head On only you're racing into three other cars. The odds of you getting around this race without at least two head-on collisions are smaller than a eunuch's sperm count and every single one of these modes can be played with two players. Another surprising feature for a cheapo budget game is with the truck set-ups. You can fiddle with the brakes; change tyres to meet different terrain needs, tweak gear-ratios (if you're a Manual sort of guy) and redo the paint job to create as garish a beast as you want. It's nothing massively inventive, but it's good to see these features in a game that could so easily have left them out,

Sure, it's not going to yank the racing crown off of Gran Turismo's mighty head, but there is fun to be had, especially when you're racing around your own ridiculously built tracks in two-player mode. It's also makes ATV Mania look like a blocky old state in comparison.

So there you have it – the last-ever OPM review tinged with praise for a game we fully expected to get a kicking. Let the good times roll, baby, yeah!

The Hack been whacked?

"Hello everyone. Jim here. It's deadline day and we were really hoping that The Hack would have his final column here for us by now, but there's been a weird turn of events. The Hack's been behaving strangely for a while now and hasn't been in the office for a good few weeks. All we've had is a succession of paranoid phone calls from him.

"Anyway, he'd promised that he was on to a really good story, so we've held off doing this page until the last minute. And then, the day before yesterday, the phone calls stopped. We were a little concerned, but assumed he'd gone deep undercover or something.

"Then this morning, Ryan woke up and found this piece of paper on his bedside table. Undoubtedly The Hack's handiwork, but as to what it means, we haven't a clue. We're all a little spooked by it, to be honest. But as it's all we've received from him, we feel it's our duty to share it with you. Make of it what you will."

The Hollywood blockbuster made me dust off this classic sequel and give it another web-slinging. Well worth it.

GAME OF THE MONTH

It may not have acquired the highest score in this month's reviews but in keeping with OPM's obsession with the beautiful game we're making XS Junior League Soccer the last game of the month! Yes this guirky, cartoony, somewhat playschool version of the national game had Ryan chomping at the bit when it arrived in the post, "It's not even very often that we have things delivered to our offices anymore! We usually have to go out and buy games to be reviewed in our mag. It's a miracle!" he wailed.

XS combines playground rules, only without the fisty-cuffs, reasonably quick gameplay without the hassle of ISS Pro Evo 2 and pretty cute five-a-side action. It might not be the ideal game to see OPM off to the pearly gates of magazine heaven but it'll have to do. Why

We know what you're all thinking in those little gaming heads of yours. You're thinking, what happens when there's no more words to write? When the Art Trolls don't have to come in and draw all over the walls with their crayons anymore? We celebrate of course. We have one drink too many to celebrate the life and times of OPM and here's who we'd like to attend the wake and who we wouldn't

Cordially invited:

If there's going to be no more OPM then we want poetic justice! Here are the top ten game characters and games that we'd like to take down to the sulphurous depths with us...

The Ultimate Perfect Gamer

This is the big one. For years now we've been asking you questions, getting to know you and using the data to create a new Perfect Gamer. Now the time has come to add up all the previous data and mix it together in an unprecedented way to create... The Ultimate Perfect Gamer! It's been a tense time, waiting for the Clone-

O-Matic to grow our gaming behemoth. But we think it's been worth it, don't you? Oh bloody please yourselves.

Ultimate Gaming Power!

Being the Ultimate Perfect Gamer is hard work and requires a lot of energy, and in our experience there's only one food source that can provide that: the mighty Hardy's Breakfast Baguette. We can feel our arteries hardening just from looking at it. In fact, damn it! We're all hungry now! Where's The Boy?

CHOON!

The Ultimate Gamer needs tunes, and only a shiny new iPod can contain enough music to sate the diverse tastes of a combined RyanJimBoyCurley creation. Not that we've included it in the vain lastminute hope that Apple will send us freebies or anything, Certainly not. (40GB models, please)

Vital Statistics (final) Name: Ultimate Perfect

CREMATION OR BURIAL?

As a wise man once said, better to be burned up than to get stuck in a box, stuffed down a hole, covered up with earth and then left to be eaten by worms and maggots. Not to mention the possibility of a mole burrowing through you. Ugh

Cremation 72%

Burial 28%

THE PERFECT PRESCRIPTION...

After getting our surly Art Troll caffeined-up on endless cups of tea, and with the promise of Star Bars and bacon rolls, we manage to persuade him to concoct the recipe for Perfect Gamer every month. Taking your likes and dislikes and blending them expertly in the secret ways that only expert Art Trolls know, we feed the resulting foul brew to an unsuspecting OPM writer and watch as they transform into the hideously mutated games-playing genius that is Perfect Gamer

DEATH OR GLORY?

Perhaps we should have thought this one through a bit more. Unsurprisingly nearly all of you opted for glory, with only one reader (who we kindly rounded up to 1%) plumping for death. And his form stank of patchouli oil. Big surprise.

■ Death 1%

■ Glory 99%

Cheats Daddy says... WOT? Who you callin' deaf? I ain't deaf! Me 'earing's brilliant, innit. Eh? Sorry? Oh, death. Didn't catch ya proper. Must be goin' a bit deaf.

THE ARENA

GAMING CHALLENGES ARE FLEETING THINGS, LEAVING YOU NO BETTER AS A PERSON. HERE'S SOMETHING DIFFERENT!

CHALLENGE

PLAY TO WIN

Every month, the same old thing. We give you a some demos then ask you to turn in your best performances. Oh, it's fun, for sure. But really. There's more to life than gaming, you know! And while it's just dandy to slaughter the opposition at Pro Evo 2 or turn in a ludicrously high score in Generic Platformer 7, we're also painfully aware that such skills are difficult to transfer to the real world. The bloke interviewing you for a job doesn't care that you own Tomb Raider. Members of the opposite (or the same, if you prefer) sex aren't Impressed by your Vib Ribbon madskillz. We want to help. So this month we set you some proper challenges, testing your mettle as a human being. Maybe one day you'll thank us for it.

THE PRIZE

No prizes this month. Only the satisfaction of becoming a better human being. Which is miles better.

START UP

The first of our real-life challenges may be familiar to some of you. Perhaps you've been dragged out for a walk on cold Sunday afternoons by well-meaning relatives. But this is more of a self-growth thing than a family obligation. Put on a pair of stout boots or shoes, and maybe a warm coat if it's a bit chilly

THE CHALLENGE

Nothing too tough about this one – indeed, you can easily adapt it to your own particular skill level. Beginners might wish to start off with a stroll down the shops to get some sweets, but that doesn't really count. The real aim of going for a walk is the walking itself. It may help if you can identify some landmark you'd like to visit, better for it!

THE PROOF

Oh dear, oh dear. It's not quite sinking in, is it? We don't require proof! This challenge is all about self-growth and that kind of thing! No need to prove anything, and we hardly need tell you that there's no point cheating, because you'll only be cheating youself. Much better to get on with it, because we're not joking about the exciting things you may find while you're out there! However you may want to observe the spirit of past challenges and take a camera with you so that you can take photos of any fascinating things you discover while you're out and about. You might want to take a rucksack as well, because you never know what you might find! A mobile phone would be handy as well in case you manage to get lost, but that's only really necessary for advanced levels.

TIP

A great way to get into this whole 'going for a walk' thing is to acquire a dog. These crazy fourlegged beings just love going for walks, and they'll keep you entertained along the way by finding stuff you can throw for them, sniffing random bits of grass, barking at other dogs and, of course, laying fresh dog eggs while everyone's watching, Bless 'em.

READ A BOOK

FLICKING HECK!

Yeah, we know it sounds like something you might have to do at school, but trust us on this: reading a book Isn't just for those pale sickly kids who get beaten up regularly! All of Team OPM love reading books! Except Curley, natch. And look at us! Er. Actually, that's a bad example now we think about it.

THE PRIZE

No prize! But you'll be cleverer and able to use words proper.

THE CHALLENGE

Another somewhat vague challenge, but then in these things we think it's best you find your own level of ability and then work from there. So, find a book! Preferably one without pictures, and not linked to a popular TV series or film. There are loads of them out there! Northern Lights! A Prayer for Owen Meany! The Illuminatus Trilogy! Complicity! The Curlous Incident of the Dog of the Night-Time! 1984! Even Harry Potter will do, if you absolutely Insist! Get yourself a book and read it. Can't afford a book? Then head down to your local library - they'll literally lend you them for nothing!

THE PROOF

As you might have expected, we require no proof, although Jim might be interested in hearing what you thought of The Illuminatus Trilogy. Again, there's no point cheating as you'l only be cheating yourself. Read a book! Read another! Amaze your friends as you start coming out with hilarious bons mots from all your fancy booklearning! You'll impress everyone. Oh yes!

O TIP

Don't rush into things too quickly. Try tackling Crime And Punishment first time and you'll just end up frustrated. Start with something gentle, use a bookmark so you don't get lost and do your reading on the bus, before bed or on the lav. You'll quickly start picking up pace. and soon Dostoevsky will be a cinch!

POP-TASTIC!

Forget about listening to pop music - our final and hardest challenge requires you to actually become a pop star! Number one! Top of the charts! It ain't going to be easy, but then nothing worthwhile really is, so deal with it.

THE PRIZE

If you win you'll be a pop star. Rich, famous and every single need catered for by fawning lackeys. What more do you want, eh?

BECOME A POP STAR

THE CHALLENGE

Simple. Compose, fund and release your own popular music record and get it to number one. There are many resources out there to help you including games, books, computer programmes so make sure you take a bit of knowledge from them all.

Naturally we can't dismiss the powers of Music 2000 in assisting you on the road to super stardom. It's also worth reading up on the topic in The KLF's The Manual.

Of course there is always the threat of sheer disappointment as your hit is rejected by every single record label under the sun. but it'll worth it to wipe the smile off Michelle Macmanus' big face.

THE PROOF

The proof of the pudding's in the eating, as they say. All the more so as this pudding is the food of love itself, that is, music. Proof itself is easy we want to see your hit song at number one and your face on Top Of The Pops. Getting there's going to be the hard part. Abandoning your musical principles and producing something that the clotheared plebs will buy takes a lot of doing. But you'll be rich if it works!

TIP

A tip for making a hit? Haven't we told you enough? The Boy could go away and knock together a pop classic on his Casio keyboard with the hints that we've given you here! Although we don't expect him to do very well because he's into all that indie stuff. Go listen to some East-17, get some inspiration.

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE Smack our Dean up

Your last chance to rain hammer blows down on our wily word Hobbit - go on, beat him!

So this is it. The last, the final, the... whatever you call it. It's a very sad day and Deanways hasn't stopped crying since he was told to go and get the team's breakfast from the local greasy spoon. But enough of his weeping and stop feeling sorry for him. he brought it on himself. Here it is, the final challenge from The Boy and as you might've guessed it's not going to be a challenge from the disc. Here's Dean to explain all...

SMACK THE PENGUIN!

SEAL PUP CULLING IS BAD BUT THIS IS VERY, VERY GOOD!

THE GAUNTLET

"This isn't your normal Beat Deanways challenge. As it's the last one ever I thought I'd set something a little different for you all to tackle. The other day Jim infected the office with an amazingly addictive online game he found. It involves swinging a baseball bat at a penguin and seeing how far you can make him fly. Tremendous fun! Needless to say I didn't have to look far for my final gaming mission to set you lot. You can find my little challenge at http://pya.cc/pyaimg/img2/200401 2111.swf but prepare yourself, you'll never want to leave it alone. I managed a whopping distance of 323.5 with my penguin-bashing skills (as did Ryan, but we won't mention that). Happy hitting and for the last time, good luck and goodbye.

DEANO'S TIP OF THE DAY

"As the web page loads you'll see that our wee projectile, in the form of a penguin, is perched on a hill ready to jump off. Underneath him is our yeti armed with a baseball bat ready to knock the falling, flightless bird to kingdom come. My tip is to swing for the penguin just as it falls past the head of the snowman. You'll need to achieve a perfect 45° angle to get anywhere in this game. Fore!

Diverting from the usual method of video game controller you're gonna have to use your mouse here as the game is on the Internet. Once you've logged on and found the penguin-bashing game just follow these instructions...

Mouse click one: "Batter up!" Mouse click two: "Let her rip!"

> BEAT DEANWAYS AND WIN THIS FANTASTIC PENGUIN HAT... MAYBE

THE PRIZE WHAT YOU CAN WIN...

Well firstly we should all congratulate Deanways on his victory in OPM107 (as painful as it is) but also give him a knuckle salad for losing his OPM 106 challenge, It's a very violent working atmosphere we have here!

As The Boy mentioned earlier, both himself and the head-honcho Mr Butt managed a whopping 323.5 in the penguin-whacking game and it's your mission to remove their thrones from underneath them. It's not PlayStation but it's bloody good fun all the same. Don't spend too much of your post-OPM time playing it though, there are girls to be pulled!

WHAT'S UP FOR GRABS?

You don't want too much do you? The only prize you'll get from us for beating Deanways at this challenge is our undying respect and the warm cuddly feeling that you'll get from beating The Boy (and Ryan for that matter).

Sadly there's no actual, physically malleable prize as this is inevitably the last OPM. Even if we were to put up a pile of the best PSone games as the loot we wouldn't be able to send it to you because we'll all be outside the DSS when your entries arrive, get it? Ha-ha - oh!

What with this being the last OPM ever and Dan taking over The Arena to set you some guirky life challenges, we thought we'd better keep some consistency in Champions League. That's why you'll find few changes here to the usual set-up and only the finest

However, there is one small alteration we've been forced to make. As you won't be needing an entry form we've replaced it with a series of testing general knowledge questions which you should answer on your path to leading a happier, more productive lifestyle in the many years to come. All the best!

The idea is to answer these Qs throughout your lifetime and in doing so you'll have lived the most fulfilling 120 years of any human hairs on the planet Oh and you may peed to swet up on any human being on the planet. Oh, and you may need to swot up on your PlayStation knowledge too. Yet another excuse to buy yourself a PS2 then. Take this with you and be safe...

BEAT DEANWAYS

OPM106 - ODDWORLD: ABE'S EXODDUS

It would seem that Deanways didn't set the bar high enough for this challenge. From all your correspondence it would seem that you had a hard time finding the secret area but once there you slaughtered the task and came out on top with all three men still fighting fit. Michael Groves, of Exeter was the lucky combatant who completed the task in record time. Damn him. Damn him to hell!

WELCOME TO # THE DARKSIDE!

We have come to the end of an era. Hold our hand as we guide you down the path to a whole new gaming world...

Bless you, loyal readers. You've stuck with your PSones like a jockey who's rode the same horse until it was too old to talk anymore. But consoles, like horses, eventually reach an age where a loving hand is needed – the kinda loving hand that reaches for the nearest shotgun, ushers the once-supreme stallion into the barn and serves up two shells of misery-ending love.

And now the PSone is pushing up daisies it's time to get proper and buy a machine that's alive and kicking. That is, a shiny new PS2. Fortunately, we re here to show you how to get your ass into the future as painlessly as possible. We've been to every shop in the country looking for the very best deals, so you know where you can get the best, and cheapest, console in town and we've also dug the dirt on the best games you can find.

CURLEY'S PS2 PICKS

Just before he disappeared from the office for the last time on his way to fling himself down the side of a mountain on a tin tray, we grabbed Curley and stood behind him with a sock full of wet sand until he came up with his definitive list of the best PS2 games money can buy. And we pretty much succeeded, until we wandered off for a second to look at a badger and he scarpered, all sharpish.

1. Pro Evalution 3

Without doubt the very best PSone ga... sorry, I mean PS2 game that has ever been invented. The offices here are full of people playing it every lunchtime when they're meant to be in the pub talking to girls about football and man stuff.

Pro Evolution Soccess Undoubtedly, the best way to waste your time imaginable. Probably.

2. GTA3 & Vice City

Take the GTA series that you know and love from the PSone and, rather than it being all flat and crappylooking, it all comes up in loads of dimensions so it looks like a proper game. Vice City even lets you fly around in helicopters and has Dennis Hopper in there as a porn director.

TOP OF THE SHOPS

So, you've decided to embrace the love that is the world of the PS2. Well done you! But you'd be a fool to just rush out and hand your money straight over to the first grinning shopkeeper you happened upon. The High Street's like a shark-infested road made of shops instead of water, and you're best off in our special bargain-hunting boat set on a course to fish for the best PS2 deals around. Ahoy!

GAMESTATION

Without doubt the best deals on offer. For 140 of your princely pounds you can get yourself a band spanking new PS2 with Prince Of Persia and one of the following three games – Tomb Raider Angel Of Darkness, Stuntman or Hitman 2. But if you don't mind a console that's been used by someone else, you can pick a second-hand machine up for £100. But, and this is the real miracle, they'll also let you trade in your PSone for £20 if it's In good nick. They also pay between £3 and £10 for games, so if you've a few decent corkers in your collection you can almost make a straight swap. We also piled through their second hand games and found some super deals (remember though, these change from store-to-store and they have a big turnover). GTA: Vice City for £18, The Getaway for £12, Pro Soccer Evolution for £10 and Devil May Cry for a tear-wiping £8. Blimey!

$H\Pi V$

These fellas didn't do so well in the console stakes. The machine was £140 as a bog-standard batch but you do get £10 off any game you buy with it (so if you buy five games you'll save £50). They had a £150 bundle with Prince Of Persia, but considering GameStation offer that for £10 less and with a choice of three budget games, it's not looking so good. They did have a reasonable "Two for £30" range. Harry Potter And The Chamber Of Secrets, Hitman 2, Theme Park World, Rayman 3 and Resident Evil Code: Veronica X. The range keeps changing, so keep your eye out.

GAME

Fared quite well. For £150 you can bag yourself a PS2 with a copy of FIFA 2004 and one of the following games – SSX3, Harry Potter Quidditch World Cup or Ratchet & Clank. They also had a good range of second-hand games that were two for £25. GT3, Red Faction, Oni, Project Zero, Smackdown!: Just Bring It, MGS2, Pro Evo and Quake III. They'll also give you £25 trade in for a PSone that's shiny and new-looking.

DIXONS/CURRYS

Had an incredible amount of bundles. Check this – for £140 you can pick one from each of these two goody bags: Haven, International Cue Club, Red Faction or Turok Evolution. Picked one of those yet? Then you pick from one of these – a tournament wheel, Madcatz dance mat, Tournament DVD remote or a Tournament pad. We'd go for Red Faction and the dance mat.

▼ mvc

Not so hot to be honest. £145 for the console and FIFA 2004 and that's it. Sod that. But a decent enough two for £30 range. The Getaway, FIFA 2003, James Bond: Nightfire, Devil May Cry and SSX Tricky were among them.

HENDS DI

PlayStation 2s can be daunting places. All black and sinister with all manner of fancy knobs and flashy lights on. But don't be scared, let us help you get acquainted with your new best friend...

MARKET CARL STREET

Essential for those occasions when you can't dedicate 150 consecutive hours to the latest in the Final Fantasy series, the PS2's 8Mb Memory Cards leave you free you to strike a (relatively) healthy balance between indoor and outdoor life.

THE RESERVE AND PERSONS ASSESSED.

Doing their best to blend into the ribbed facade of the PS2, these two ports are identical to those found on the original PlayStation. Plug in those Dual Shocks and you're away.

The state of the last of the l

The Universal Serial Bus, or USB interface, has nothing to do with public transport but everything to do with connectivity between your PS2 and all manner of function enhancing peripherals -- keyboards, lightguns, dance mats, etc. The USB port is already the industry standard for Macs and PCs, the PS2 is in good company.

ALC: UNKNOWN PROPERTY.

Sony call it the i-Link port or S400, Apple Mac users call it Firewire, while tech-buffs refer to it with a fond sigh as the IEEE1394. You can call-it an extremely efficient way of transferring large amounts of digital information (the kind you find in high resolution images) to and from your PS2. Oh and you can use it to connect to your mates' consoles for six-player Gran Turismo 3 action. Oulte useful, then.

THE RESIDENCE AND ADDRESS.

Dispensing with the low rent, pop-up CD Ild of the PSone, the new machine has a sliding drawer giving it instantly enhanced gravitas. But the desired position is to stand your PS2 on its end, and with that in mind Sony has given the tray a small lip to keep the disc steady.

NAME OF TAXABLE PARTY.

The Reset button is located directly above (or to the left if the machine is vertical) of the Open button and has two functions. Press it briefly and the PS2's RAM will clear, and the current disc will reload. Pressing and holding the button puts it in powersave mode. Reset's LED glows red when the power is on but no disc is inside, and green at other times.

> Designation

Self explanatory this one. The open button triggers the CD drawer to slide out with supreme smoothness but that's only half the story: press it again and the whole process goes into reverse, accompanied by a gently winking, ice blue LED that glows once a disc is loaded. Space-age.

The Wonderful World Of PS2 PayStatio

That sizeable, flap-concealed cavity to the left of the cooling fan is the port for Sony's broadband modem and forthcoming hard disk drive.

Identical in all but shade to the PSone's, this thing medium of cable, and so rescues your PS2 from life as a flashy, lightly humming paperweight. In short, you connect to your TV from here.

console than its grey older brother and requires more energy to push out all those polygons, hence the need for this fan to keep it cool.

An optical digital output which enables those of you with the additional hardware to channel the PS2's superb audio into a Digital Amplifier for the Surround Sound experience.

functionality, its predecessor's fun-sized on/off button has been replaced by a discreet switch hidden around the back above the power socket. Instead of turning it off, you have the option to send your baby to sleep by holding the reset button down. Once in powersave mode you can rouse it again by pressing reset or tapping the open button.

CURLEY'S PS2 PICKS

3. Metal Gear Solid 2: Sons Of Liberty

I have to admit, the original MGS is still the best of the series, but this version has better graphics being PS2 'n' all. And you'd be well advised to play it so you can keep track of the series seeing as the third one's heading our way. Oh, and be sure to get the Substance version – it has loads of extra gubbins.

MGS Still the best, but the PS2 version is well-tasty!

Gran Turismo 3:

A-Spec When playing this, there are moments when you look at it and think you're watching a TV programme about cars. Not one of those programmes that are using computer graphics like Toy Story does, but real cars with cameraman pointing their camera at them and everyfink. Unbelievable, GT3: Just like watching the telly. According to Curley.

5. Hitman 2

The Hitman in question is bald and kills people for kicks. That should make him the most appalling man since Ronald McDonald decided to stick gherkins in his burgers, but what you end up with is the greatest killing spree since Julius Caesar decided to burn all those disrespectful, tax-dodging greengrocers.

Hitman 2: Angry bald man offs scum for moolah..

8MB Memory Card

Although you're free to use old PSone Memory Cards they'll only be useful if you're taking advantage of the PS2's backwards compatibility. PS2 game saves require the increased capacity of the 8MB memory card. Sony is also paving the way for a future of secure game downloading by incorporating its MagicGate encryption software into the cards. This, in conjunction with the hard drive, will eventually enable you to pay for and then download games.

MultiTar

The new MultiTap is a tiny ribbed triumph of design, looking for all the world like a diminutive PS2 but with just enough surface area for four controllers and their accompanying Memory Cards to hook up to it. An essential purchase, without it, four-player games of Pro Evolution Soccer 3 and group TimeSplitters 2 scraps would be but a delicious, distant dream. Fork out for two, and the sofa-cramped world of eight-player gaming can be yours!

If you think Tekken 3 on the PSone is bloody good, then you're going to cream over this like a old lonely geezer who's just watched a film with dead-nice women in it. Truly a work of combat genius.

Take any snowboarding game, shove it down a sci-fi cannon and blast it towards a neonsoaked galaxy cluster. Faster than a hare with a rocket up its backside and more formidable than Superman with a cosh.

B. TimeSplitters 2

The best first-person shooter on the PS2. You travel through time and shoot a load of things up. Imagine the Quantum Leap programme but instead of a geek trying to make things nice, you're a commando blowing everyone away.

9. The Getawau

Check this out for a trade secret, I wrote the Original storyline for this game when I worked for Sony, I ain't kidding! A game where your wife gets killed, your son gets kidnapped and you have to set the Yardies at war with the Triads! All thought up from my sleep-deprived foamy mouth hysteria, which makes it well worth checking out.

10. Burnout 2

[Oops, sorry, Curley sped away - Ed)

The redesigned G-Con looks sexier, is much lighter, has new 'clip' and 'hammer' buttons and is even more unerringly accurate. Unlike the PSone version, it plugs into the USB peripheral port with a secondary lead slotting

PlayStation

We've finally got our hands on Gran Turismo 4! Well, the mini-version called GT4: Prologue anyway. And boy, is it difficult.

We all know what to expect: super-accurate driving action and some of the world's prettiest high-performance cars brought beautifully to before, including online play, but has it become too hard? Well, a play of the Japan-only mega-demo GT4: Prologue soon brings some answers. "Nooo!" cry the hardcore. "Sweet mercy yes!" scream the uninitiated. And one thing that's going to split you even more is the lack of car damage... again.

Prologue consists of a board game-five arcade courses with a huge choice of cars for anyone who hankers after some immediate fun. As far as a 'real driving simulator' goes, the driving test mode we played was challenging, but not the most tasking experience. Mind you, hit licence tests are a great introduction to the game and gradually ease you in, while for completists there's the familiar lure of the GT gold award on each test.

It's a great indication of what's to come, and the cars we've managed to unlock so far look great. The driving simulation is definitely real, but the rest of the world created around it most certainly isn't. As it is, in the arcade mode with an indestructible car, it feels like you're in a high-speed bumper car. Small negatives aside, G74 isn't easy, but you will get more out of the game if beginner's level of driver assistance on, the handling's a tricky and sporadically effective affair. The cars often feel sluggish too. It's not comfortable for the first few laps but you will improve, and that's where enthusiasts will come into their own. Whether the rest of us will be left parked up on the lay-by by then is another matter though

There's no real sign of racing for extra money and components yet, but as always, the idea will be to build the best car you can and then roll it out against all comers online.

After this taster, we're excited to get into the larger game and start working our way up the ranks. The online mode is a big question mark, but the mere possibility of large-scale Gran Turismo is enough to get us going. Without it we're left with an updated, highly polished and expertly tweaked version of the previous games. Put your excitement back in the garage but dust off that force feedback

STAR WARS: BATTLEFRON

PREVIEW) We is feeling this force

Taking inspiration from the PC hit Battlefield 1942, Battlefront is all about team-based combat in which two armies of eight players fight to control bases littered across eight familiar planets, each featuring two maps.

Players entering the game select a class of fighter, each with their own skills and weapons. You'll be able to pilot many classic vehicles too, from scout bikes to Tauntauns. Along with the standard instant action mode, LucasArts is introducing a campaign option where sides battle on a series of planets, the aim being to conquer more worlds than the opposing force. Keeping hold of a planet opens up a range of special bonuses too. We'll have a lot more on this one next month... Er, or not.

It's been five years since Fight Club was released and it might surprise you that there's never been a game of Brad Pitt's finest celluloid moment. Well now there is.

So, how you can turn a philosophical and complex movie into an exciting videogame? The answer's simple - you dumb it down and use the movie's most striking visual references. It's not a remake, it's an interpretation.

What you get is a one-on-one 3D brawler. There'll be a conscious effort to replicate Fight Club's gritty style and a possibility of some of the big names making an appearance. Quite how relevant the game will be by the time it's released this summer is questionable, but there's the possibility of a re-release of the DVD to help boost sales... @

WE'BE DO

General consternation as End of the World approaches.

After a month of chaos, confusion, panic and bloody, pointless rioting, the world will be destroyed tonight, starting at 10pm.

World leaders have again urged calm and have dismissed reports that they've scarpered to the Infernational Space Station in order to escape tonight's planetary annihilation. Tony Blair, rotating gently in What looked like a space suit, spoke to the nation last night and insisted that he was staying put on the planet's surface "Yes, well, it's easy to make accusations," he said, "But, y'know, the end of the world's like, this really massive thing that takes a lot of work. It might look like I'm wearing a space suit and floating in zero gravity, but really that's just part of the job of being prime minister and it's not a responsibility I intend to shirk." While he spoke, George W Bush drifted past in the background, pursuing a freefloating pretzel.

Despite yet more pleas from opposition leaders and human rights organisations. destruction will commence at 10pm when the world's nuclear warheads will be detonated in their silos. Starting in North America and working east around the world in what promises to be a Mexican wave of unparalleled obliteration. Said Mr Blair, "It's going to look really good from space. Not that I'm in space, of course. Definitely not."

France remains committed to its abstention from the end of the world, and its citizens continue to go about their daily business as usual. @
